

Georgios Psychogios

I completed my studies at the Medical School of the University of Crete in 2002. Having lived in Germany as a child and knowing the German health system, I decided to go to Germany and started my residency in 2005.

I completed my residency in the university hospital of Erlangen which is one of the biggest university ENT departments in Germany (6 operating theatres/day, 90beds) and one of the world's most known salivary gland centres. After examinations I became a specialist in 2010. After learning general ENT procedures, I was mostly involved in head and neck oncologic surgery and salivary gland surgery. Furthermore I was also trained in endoscopic sinus surgery. Since I became a specialist in Otorhinolaryngology in the year 2010 I performed more than 400 operations/year. 2013 I completed my habilitation (equivalent to Ph.D.) with Title "prognostic factors including HPV in oropharyngeal carcinoma" and became consultant in Erlangen.

2014 I accepted an invitation from Prof. Zenk and became deputy clinic director in Augsburg (3 operating theatres/day, 60beds). In this position I had the full responsibility of the department for the time the director was absent (two months/year). Simultaneously I earned the teaching authority of the Ludwig-Maximilians-University Munich (equal to clinical Assistant Professor). In Augsburg I was responsible for head and neck surgery (including free flap reconstruction with radial forearm flaps), microscopic ear surgery (including cochlear implants and active middle ear implants) and for salivary gland surgery (including facial nerve reconstruction and sialendoscopes). Furthermore I performed endoscopic sinus surgery (including closure of CSF fistulas).

2019 I was elected Professor of the ENT Department of Ioannina Greece, position that I joined in April 2019.

Scientifically, I have been involved in many clinical studies in Erlangen and have published a total of 54 Pubmed publications. In addition, I have given more than 30 lectures (e.g. Keynote-lecture and instructional course in IFOS 2017 and European ORL-HNS 2015,2017, 2019) over the last years.

Furthermore I have a large teaching experience. I participate for more than 10 years in teaching activities for students and gave more than 40 instruction lectures in seminars and congresses.
